

WEDNESDAY UPDATE: For perspective, the pictures coming out of Fallujah are a journalistic landmark. Beyond Gulf War I, beyond the first night of the attack on Baghdad, we are seeing very up close and, literally, from a GI-eye's view, a military operation in real time. Try to explain this to viewers, who may take this incredible visual moment for granted.

Also, let's refer to the US marines we see in the foreground as "sharpshooters" not snipers, which carries a negative connotation.

We'll see a variety of admin officials including Rumsfeld on Capitol Hill to brief lawmakers on Iraq. With the action in Fallujah, they'll want some answers.

Do not ignore the Oil for Food story, please. Fox News is making steady progress in investigating what could be, without exaggeration, the biggest ripoff of all time. the House Intl Relations committee holds more hearings today.

The runup to the Bush-Cheney testimony on 9/11 is bound to generate speculation. Remember, we won't see or hear what's going on, the session won't be formally recorded, and POTUS/VPOTUS will not be sworn in. It will be historic testimony but bad TV.

SCOTUS issues orders and hears arguments on the cases of Hamdi and Padilla (not an accident law firm), the US born foreign combatants.
