

GLICKENHAUS & Co.

Six East 43rd Street
New York, New York 10017-4641
(212) 953-7800

VIA FACSIMILE (410-568-1533)

October 19, 2004

David D. Smith
Chairman of the Board, President and CEO
Sinclair Broadcast Group, Inc.
10706 Beaver Dam Road
Hunt Valley, Maryland 21030

Dear Mr. Smith:

We are fiduciaries of our several clients' investments in Sinclair Broadcasting Group, Inc. and have watched with alarm the damage to our clients' investment in the corporation as a result of your decision to broadcast the film "Stolen Honor." Your decision already has damaged the value of our clients' shares, and we are writing to you in the hope that you will take immediate steps to protect our clients' investments.

We have observed the following events over the last several days:

- Groups of both the House of Representatives and the Senate have called for an inquiry into the licenses held by the corporation;
- Market analysts have downgraded their valuations of the corporation, in part because of concerns that the corporation's broadcast licenses may be revoked or not renewed;
- The market capitalization of the corporation has been severely reduced;
- Advertisers have announced that they will withdraw advertising, thereby further reducing revenue; and,

- The reputation and goodwill of the corporation have suffered damage in the eyes of the public, including advertisers.

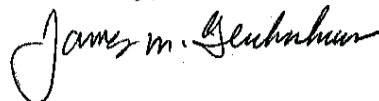

The only certain way for you and Sinclair management to avoid further, irreparable damage to the corporation is to take immediate action to ensure the public that Sinclair is fair, balanced and not politically motivated. As it stands now, the corporation is perceived by many, in both major political parties, as using its assets to advance a particular political agenda. Such a perception, if not corrected immediately by prompt action, endangers the corporation's licenses, continued revenues, and reputation.

If you insist on airing "Stolen Honor," we demand on behalf of our clients that the corporation provide those with views opposed to the allegations in the film an equal opportunity to respond. This opportunity must be one that is viewed by the impartial public as a meaningful and equivalent opportunity, in terms of timing, format and content. This means ensuring that the response be aired in such a manner that it reaches an audience of comparable size, in the same time slot, for an equal duration, in all markets that have aired the film, prior to Election Day. If you will not do so, then Sinclair should not broadcast "Stolen Honor."

Lehman Brothers noted last week that Sinclair "has previously put the interests of management ahead of the shareholders." We hope that you will not do so again, but rather will change your current course of action because doing so is in the best interest of the shareholders.

We understand that you have received requests from non-shareholders to either not broadcast the film or allow equal time for an opposing point of view, have had ample time to consider your course of conduct, and have failed to remedy this situation. Nevertheless, we will await a decision until the close of business today and, if we have not received from you a response granting our demand, we will immediately seek the remedies available to shareholders in such situations.

Sincerely,

James M. Glickenhau

cc: Frederick G. Smith (via facsimile)
J. Duncan Smith (via facsimile)
Robert E. Smith (via facsimile)
Daniel C. Keith (via facsimile)
Martin R. Leader (via facsimile)
Lawrence E. McCanna (via facsimile)
Basil A. Thomas (via facsimile)